

Homework Tips for Hassle Free Homework

Parents, are you having difficulty with getting your child to do their homework? Not reaching their academic potential? Or just plain getting organized with their classes? If so, check the list below to make sure that you are doing what you can to support their effort and help set them up for success.

-
- Use a daily Agenda Planner.
 - Check the teachers' website for assignments.
 - Develop expectations of your child during homework time.
 - Focused homework time with planned, short breaks
 - Reviewing their homework with them after it is complete
 - Be available to answer questions (but do not do the work for your child).
 - If your child has difficulty getting started direct them on where to begin and what steps they can start with to complete their assignment.
 - Follow through to make sure that your child is turning in their completed assignments by checking grades online
 - If your child has a history of poor school performance, don't hold back and hope for the best. Be active in communicating with the teachers and meet with counselor to develop a plan to help your child succeed.